The issue of project management maturity models has received great attention to assess organization's current capabilities in implement project management. This assessment allows any organizations for comprehending its effectiveness in delivering projects as well as providing substantial framework for performance improvement and can lead to the competitive advantage for firms. Nevertheless, the model has received little attention in Indonesian project-based organization that make the organization difficult to growth. Therefore, this research aims to implement project management maturity model for in an Indonesian project-based organization to more excellent in accomplishing projects. Five level maturity and ten project management knowledge areas were used as the main assessment tools. The principal findings indicate that the selected organization maturity level rated as level 2. Finally, a recommendation is made on how project management knowledge areas might be strengthened in order to improve the organization's capabilities.
