

Preface

The present study has been done within the framework of the Minor Field Study, MFS, scholarship programme of the Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency, Sida. It is my final thesis at the multi-disciplinary Master's course Communication for Development at Malmö University, Sweden.

I would like to thank the staff at the Indonesia Media Law and Policy Centre, IMLPC, in Jakarta. First of all I will thank my very busy supervisor, Media Law Ombudsperson and Executive Director, Hinca I.P Pandjaitan, for letting me use the office and be able to ask your helpful staff, whenever I needed. Thank you Dyah Aryani P, Shinta Ayu Handayani, Christiana Chelsia Chan , Louis C Schramm, Mas Wigrantoro, Maya Wuryanto, and Supriyanto. My work with the thesis and my stay in Jakarta had never been the same without you guys. Many thanks for your support, for helping me with useful information and for all the nice lunches we shared together!

My gratitude also goes to my colleagues, Maria Nilson and Ingela Rutberg, whom I shared the apartment with in Jakarta. Thanks for choosing to stay in an apartment with me, for your company and your support, which really encouraged me in my daily work.

I will also thank Inger Lindstedt my supervisor at Malmö University, who has been my guide in this work and Tedi Yudho Triyanto who supported me in the work and did the translation from English to Bahasa Indonesia.

And last, but not least, many thanks to all the journalists and other media people who let me take some of your valuable time for doing the interviews. I wish you all luck for the future.

Stockholm 25 April 2002

Anneli Ström Leijel