Author : Rhenald Kasali
No. Class : 658.406 KAS c
Lokasi : Jakarta

Description:

Melakukan perubahan bukanlah hal yang mudah. Ada banyak risiko yang harus dibayar. Berbahaya, bahkan tidak jarang mengancam jiwa. Namun tetap, berapapun besar biaya perubahan, dunia tidak pernah sepi dari tokoh-tokoh pembawa perubahan. Dalam buku ini, Rhenald Kasali begitu gamblang menggambarkan tentang sosok pemimpin perubahan. Pemimpin perubahan (change leader), baginya, adalah pemimpin yang bisa memperbaiki hidup kita, bangsa kita dan keturunan kita. Bukan yang hanya menggunakan jabatannya untuk mengimpressi, pamer kekuasaan, apalagi mewariskan kerusakan. Seorang change leader, kata Rhenald, tidak pernah takut akan banyaknya risiko. Ia akan terus berjuang mewujudkan karya dan impiannya, meski di depannya menghadang risiko besar, sebuah ketidakpastian (non-finito) kekurangan biaya, kurangnya dukungan masyarakat, ketidakpastian perekonomian dunia, ataupun kehabisan waktu. Ya, kalau ingin menghasilkan perubahan besar, bersiaplah menghadapi ketidakpastian. Non-Finito!

Patient-Centered Primary Care: Getting From Good To Great

Author : Alexander Blount
No. Class : 362.1 PAN a
Lokasi : Jakarta

Description:

There have been great strides made in designing the administrative structures of patient-centered care, but it is still difficult to design truly patient-centered clinical routines that the entire healthcare team can enact. The kind of partnership, in which patients are fully part of the team that guides their own care, goes against so much of the training and socialization of health professionals and, for that matter, the expectations of many patients. This is particularly true for patients we sometimes call complex. In other contexts, we call them high utilizers, disadvantaged, heartsink patients, or people with trauma histories. Blount calls them multiply-disadvantaged patients. To successfully serve these patients requires our best versions of team-based care, including behavioral health and care management team members, though every member of the team needs help in engaging these patients and mutual support in adapting to the rapid changes in roles that new team approaches are creating. This book offers a summary of the approaches that are currently in growing use, such as health literacy assessment, motivational interviewing, appreciative inquiry, shared decision making, minimally disruptive care, trauma informed care, enfranchisement coaching, relationship-centered care, and family-informed care. Finally, it offers a transformative method, based on familiar elements, that is Transparent, Empowering, Activating, and Mutual: the T.E.A.M. Way.

Patient As Agent Of Health And Health Care: Autonomy In Patient-Centered Care For Chronic Conditions

Author : Mark D. Sullivan
No. Class : 613 SUL p
Lokasi : Jakarta

Description:

Patient-centered care for chronic illness is founded upon the informed and activated patient, but we are not clear what this means. We must understand patients as subjects who know things and as agents who do things. Bioethics has urged us to respect patient autonomy, but it has understood this autonomy narrowly in terms of informed consent for treatment choice. In chronic illness care, the ethical and clinical challenge is to not just respect, but to promote patient autonomy, understood broadly as the patients overall agency or capacity for action. The primary barrier to patient action in chronic illness is not clinicians dictating treatment choice, but clinicians dictating the nature of the clinical problem. The patient perspective on clinical problems is now often added to the objective-disease perspective of clinicians as health-related quality of life (HRQL). But HRQL is merely a hybrid transitional concept between disease-focused and health-focused goals for clinical care. Truly patient-centered care requires a sense of patient-centered health that is perceived by the patient and defined in terms of the patient vital goals. Patient action is an essential means to this patient-centered health, as well as an essential component of this health. This action is not extrinsically motivated adherence, but intrinsically motivated striving for vital goals. Modern pathophysiological medicine has trouble understanding both patient action and health. The self-moving and self-healing capacities of patients can be understood only if we understand their roots in the biological autonomy of organisms. Taking the patient as the primary perceiver and producer of health has the following policy implications:

- Care will become patient-centered only when the patient is the primary customer of care.
- Professional health services are not the principal source of population health, and may lead to clinical, social and cultural iatrogenic injury.
- Social justice demands equity in health capability more than equal access to health services
